After luncheon Smith took a stroll over the hills with his shotgun in search of small game. In climbing through a fence the gun was accidentally discharged. Smith was killed almost instantly. Miss Azalea Thompson, the charming, pretty and efficient deputy in the office of County Clerk Mrs. E. M. Nash, without confiding in any one, not even to her closest friend, slipped down to Salinas on Saturday last and was there married to Alvin Brown, son of Fred Brown, of San Mateo. Rev. M. J. Jensen of Salinas performed the ceremony. Mrs. Brown arrived at the county clerk's office on Wednesday and announced the news of her marriage which was a big surprise to her numerous friends at the court house where she is extremely popular.

The marriage is the culmination of a romance which had its beginning in San Francisco when the winsome bride was the chief stenographer for the Crane company. Mr. Brown was also employed in San Francisco at that time and the young people met on the trains as commuters, the friendship started in this manner, ripened into love.

AN AMERICAN PRESIDENT

Colonel George Harvey, the brilliant editor of Harvey's Weekly, who is soon to be appointed as ambassador to the Court of St. James in his edition of March the 12th pays a fine tribute to President Harding's inaugural address. Among other things he says:

"Epilogue and Prologue together were given in President Harding's first words to the Nation as its chosen head; the most momentous Inaugural Address since that of exactly sixty years before. Without professing to be such, involuntarily yet of necessity it was a most impressive and conclusive epilogue upon the epoch which had just closed, with all its conflict and madness, with all its vanities and vagaries, with all that the world would have wished to shun, with all that the world now wishes to forget. Still more was it a purposeful prologue to the new epoch which was opening, with its peace and progress, with its reassertion of sane and sturdy Americanism, and with its immeasurable potentiality of service to the world."

"Americanism was its keynote, in discussion of national and international affairs. That was made clear and distinct in the very first sentence. The American President spoke as an American, to Americans. He spoke as an American who believed in America, in American institutions, in American traditions, in American principles; even as one who believed in the divine inspiration and guidance of those who founded this Republic. He spoke, too, as one whose belief in America found abundant and convincing confirmation in the recorded and recognized experience of nearly a century and a half of national life; during which the outside world's first attitude of scorn and doubt was transformed, by the irresistible logic of things done, into confident faith and yearning hope that this country would show itself its brother's keeper and in some manner extend its own advantages and blessings to all mankind."

"This experience, this recorded progress of the Republic, both material and spiritual, exceeding any other known in the long annals of the race, proved to the speaker's mind the wisdom of the principles upon which the American nation was founded; and of the policy which it had pursued; even the lately much disputed principle and policy of non-involvement in the political affairs of the Old World. Upon that point, now paramount above all others as the very gist and spirit of the great and solemn referendum which made him President, he spoke with a definiteness of speech, a clarity of thought, a scope of vision, and a spiritual elevation which have not been surpassed by any orator of our day."

A REAL CABINET

Mr. Harding has wisely pursued the policy of giving the heads of departments in his administration a free hand in performing their duties. They are to be real officials, not mere messengers. Moreover, their responsibilities will be commensurate with their powers. There is the power to act, and theirs must be the responsibility for failure to get results. Mr. Harding has recognized the fact that the United States Government is too big for any one man to run. This being true, he has called to his assistance men who are accustomed to managing large affairs, and will entrust them with authority to show what they can do in conducting business for the government. The ultimate accountability, of course, rests upon Mr. Harding, for he has selected the men who will fill the positions, but responsibility for the manner in which the duties are performed will be with the incumbents of the several cabinet positions.

It is also a wise policy of Mr. Harding to call frequent cabinet conferences so that there shall be unity of effort and avoidance of duplication or conflict in official action. The numerous instances in which departments of the Wilson administration have worked at cross purposes were almost enough to create doubt as to the ultimate success of our form of government. We shall now see the result of having real men and not mere rubber stamps in cabinet positions.

DON'T WORRY—SMILE

The world knows but little of failures, and cares less. The world only watches the success.

Stop worrying over things that can't be helped and go and do things that can be done.

Few people care a continental for your failure. Few, if any, will help. You may sit and magnify your mistakes, mourn and go mad over your blunders, but men will only smile that cynical smile and say of you, "He's no good."

Self-pity, sympathy-soliciting, wishing and walling will only let you down lower. Brace up. Brush up. Think up. And you will get up. And you will stay down.

Paint your face with a smile. Advertise that you are a success. Then think and work for it.

Whatever you think you are is the price they will pay.

Money talks louder these days, but its list of speaking acquaintances is growing narrower and more exclusive

WILL OF MRS. PAYSON

FILED FOR PROBATE

The last will and testament of Mrs. Abby Josephine Payson, who died at the Red Cross hospital at San Mateo on March 12, 1921, was filed for probate in the county clerk's office on Wednesday. The will is holographic and was executed at San Mateo on January 30, 1887.

She had no children surviving, her daughter, Christina, having died a number of years ago. Her husband survives her. Garret McEnerney is the attorney for petitioner, Albert H. Payson. The value of the estate is not stated in the petition but is estimated to be worth between $750,000 and $1,000,000. The will is as follows:

San Mateo, January 30, 1887: I, Abby Josephine Payson, a resident of the County of San Mateo, State of California, make, publish and declare this my last will and testament as follows:

I give, devise and bequeath to my husband, Albert H. Payson all the property and estate of every kind which I now have or may hereafter acquire, whether real or personal, legal or equitable in possession or expectancy.

I appoint him sole executor of this will and direct that no bond or other security shall be required of him. I further direct that no inventory or appraisal of my estate need be filed by him, and I give him full power to sell and convey the whole or any part of my estate whether real or personal without any order of Court.

I make no provision for my child Christine or any other child or children that I may have because they will probably be amply provided for under the will of my late father and because I prefer to commit them to my husband's love.

MENLO PARK NEWS OF ALL SORTS

A brilliant concert of classical Irish music will be given in Nativity Hall, Menlo Park, on Wednesday evening, March 16, at 8:20 o'clock p. m.

Mr. Uda Waldrop, renowned pianist and internationally known as a composer will be heard in solo work and will accompany the artists.

Mr. Waldrop has written music for the Bohemian club plays and also for the Family Club. His greatest success was the music written for the last year's play of the Family Farm, called "The Fountain of Youth."

During the present season Uda Waldrop was engaged to play for Julia Clausen and Arthur Middleton, both of the Metropolitan Opera of New York.

It will be worth the price of admission alone to hear this great artist play.

One of the vocalists, Mr. Noel Sullivan, will be heard in some song literature for the bass voice. Mr. Sullivan arrived from abroad, recently after spending many months studying with the renowned teachers in Paris and London. The press notices in the European papers of his singing are brilliant testimonies of the high plane of his vocal art.

Mr. Lynn Coleman has taken up her residence in Ross Valley after an extended concert tour of the country. Her repertoire contains songs of all the nations and it will be a rare treat and great opportunity to hear her.

Besides her Irish songs, she will sing some lively Russian classics.

Professor D'Arcy and Will Healy are considered the greatest experts of traditional Irish music living today.

They have studied all the books and obtained all the literature relating to Irish music. The peninsula has never been accorded the privilege of hearing this music and hearing it so well executed.

The Hannigan sisters will dance the famous "Rocky Road to Dublin" dance. This dance is the oldest dance of Ireland. They will also interpret the reels and jigs.

Father Boyle, whose success as a concert singer is well established, will be heard in the great ballad of '98, a rebel song, "The Croppy Boy."

Father Boyle received this song lately from Ireland, and has the only copy on the coast.

Thomas L. Lennon, whose reputation as an orator was well established in the latest presidential campaign, will briefly give the American view of the Irish question.

After the address a first-class orchestra will play popular selections. Tickets are only 50 cents and can be produced at the box office of the Nativity Hall the night of the concert.

A dance in the form of hard times party has been arranged for Saturday, April 2 in Native Sons' hall by the Companions of the Forest. Come in your aprons and overalls, come in anything at all. A valuable prize is to be awarded for the most original hard times make-up. Admission 28 cents.

On Wednesday evening, March 30 Menlo Parlor, N. D. G. W. will give a card party in Native Sons' hall for the benefit of the homeless children.
